Did you know...
West Side Research and Extension Center (WSREC)

- Pima cotton is native to Peru, and grows well in the arid conditions at West Side REC and other parts of California's Central Valley.
- Pima cotton is superior to most cottons because it is softer and more durable.
- Pima cotton is used for clothing but is also important for medical supplies.

To learn more about cotton and other crops grown at the West Side Research and Extension Center, please visit the Center's website:
ucanr.edu/sites/wsrec